

Job Title: Podcasting Facilitator

Location: Schools and Community Settings in West or Northwest London

Salary: £45 per hour on a freelance basis

Reports to: Schools and Communities Manager

Agreement type: Freelance

The Wac Arts Schools and Communities team is looking for experienced workshop leaders to join their pool of Podcast Facilitators working across schools and community settings in Camden and the surrounding areas. You will plan and deliver dynamic workshops supporting young people KS2 and above to develop and record their own podcasts. Young people taking part in these workshops will learn how to structure a podcast, create engaging audio content and set up their own recording studio.

Wac Arts provides select equipment for use in these sessions, including laptops, tabletop microphones and cameras. You will also receive support and guidance from the Schools and Communities team.

Essential Criteria:

- Experience planning and delivering podcasting workshops and activities for young people ages 7 – 11 and/or 11 – 16 in schools and community settings.
- Strong understanding of technical requirements for successful producing audio content
- Confidence in planning and delivering accessible and inclusive sessions in non-mainstream settings.
- Strong knowledge and practical experience of Podcasting.
- Enhanced DBS registered to the update service.

To apply please complete the online application form before the deadline of Thursday 9 January at 12:00pm. Applications will be reviewed on a rolling basis, and we encourage those interested to apply as soon as possible as we have opportunities available from early January 2025.
